INTRODUCTION

Within this guide is everything you need to know about the Cover we, Amica, provide and the terms under which we are prepared to insure your goods.

We cannot over emphasise the importance of taking time to read through this guide as it will help you make a fully informed decision on whether the Cover that we are offering is right for you. Neither we, nor your Remover can make the decision for you.

This guide explains amongst other things:

- The relationship between you (the customer) and Amica;
- The terms of the Cover;
- The role of the Remover;
- The role of the appointed claims handlers;
- How a claim will be processed;
- Rights to cancel;
- Complaints procedures;
- How we handle your personal information.

If, having read this guide, you still have questions regarding the Cover then contact the Remover in the first instance and they will be delighted to assist you. If the questions cannot be answered by the Remover then they will contact us.

OVERVIEW

The policy

The policy is the contract between you (the policyholder) and us (Amica).

The open cover is offered based on our knowledge of international transit and storage risks and the Remover's operations and methods.

The Remover is not a party or a beneficiary to the policy. When you make a claim under our policy you are making a claim against Amica not the Remover.

DEMANDS AND NEEDS

The terms of the Cover can be found on pages 12 to 20. The terms explain the basis on which we are prepared to insure your goods.

Neither we nor your Remover are qualified to give advice on insurance such as:

- whether to insure your goods,
- whether the Cover is suitable for you;
- assessing the best risk management requirements for you,
- identifying particular risks unique to you or your circumstances, or
- Valuing your goods.

The Cover we offer is intended to meet your particular "demands and needs" so far as we can and is based upon our experience of insuring international transit risks. Having read this guide, it is entirely your decision as to whether the Cover we offer is what you require and whether it meets your particular "demand and needs".

SELECTIVE INSURANCE

It is a pre-condition to us agreeing to insure your goods, that you insure all of your goods which are subject to the removal/storage services. Cover is not available on a selected item(s) basis.

UNDER INSURANCE (Average)

It is important that you insure your goods for their full replacement at destination. We understand that there is a temptation to save money by declaring a lower sum insured however, if you do not insure your goods for their full replacement value, it will reduce the amount you can recover under the Cover if you make a claim. This reduction is referred to as the application of "Average".

Example:

The goods are insured for £1000. The true/correct value of the goods is £2000 so they are underinsured by £1000 (50%). A claim is made for £1000. As the goods are insured for 50% of their real value (£2000) average is applied and only 50% of the claim will be paid, which equates to £500.

The ultimate decision as to how much you insure your goods for lies with you. Neither we nor the Remover can give you advice in this regard.

DURATION OF COVER

Subject to the payment of the premium as invoiced by the remover, your goods will be insured from the time they come into the care and control of the Remover. The Cover will remain in force for the duration of transit until delivery to the destination address provided to the Remover.

The transit includes overnight stops and holding the goods for a short period for onward transit.

Cover, during storage, can only be provided if your goods are stored in either the Remover's own warehouse or the Remover's agent's warehouse.

Cover will not be provided if your goods are stored at third party premises.

STORAGE EXTENSIONS

The Cover includes insurance for 60 days storage at origin and 60 days storage at destination.

Where storage is required at origin or destination beyond 60 days, you must notify the Remover (not the Remover's local agent) and request an extension of the Cover.

Storage extensions are subject to additional premiums.

It is your responsibility to request storage extensions and pay the premiums.

Failure to pay the premiums or the storage extension premiums will bring the Cover on your goods to an end and you will not be able to make a claim.

OWNER PACKED GOODS

Owner packed goods are covered under the open cover subject to the completion of the proposal form, payment of the premium and terms of the policy.

Owner packed Items valued at £250 or above must be listed on the proposal form.

Bicycles valued £750 or over must be crated or ply cased in order to be insured under this open cover.

INSTITUTE CARGO CLAUSES 2009 (A)

The terms of the Cover are based upon the Institute Cargo Clauses 2009 (A) which are considered to provide the widest insurance cover against potential marine risks.

GENERAL AVERAGE

General average is an agreement between the shipping line and the owners of the cargo to share any costs incurred if the ship is damaged, gets into difficulty, or where there is an emergency which risks the ship, crew or cargo. These costs could include, but are not limited to:

- contributions for repairs to the ship;
- cost of loading/unloading the cargo;
- salvage costs;
- accommodation for the crew; and
- any other costs or expenses incurred to make the ship seaworthy or to ensure the cargo can be sent on the its ultimate destination.

General average also applies if the ship gets into difficulty and the captain or master of the ship decides to sacrifice some of the cargo by throwing it overboard (known as jettison) in order to stabilise the ship and protect the crew and the rest of the cargo. In this situation the shipping line and the owners of the remaining cargo will be required to contribute towards the cost of compensating the owners of the cargo that has been jettisoned.

Subject to the terms of the policy the Cover will apply in the event of General Average being declared by the shipping line so you will be insured against any costs.

BOTH TO BLAME CLAUSES

Shipping lines operate under specific terms and conditions which are set out in the bill of lading. Their terms and conditions include what are known as “both to blame” clauses. These clauses provide that, in the event of two or more ships colliding, and if all ships are equally to blame, all those with a financial interest in the voyage such as the owners of the cargo and the ship owners, must share between them any losses. The amount paid by the owners of the cargo is determined by the value of the cargo prior to the collision.

Subject to the terms and conditions, the Cover will apply in the event of a claim arising from a “both to blame” event.
